

UCHICAGO LAW SCHOLARS

The University of Chicago is committed to ensuring the breadth and depth of our intellectual community. From undergraduates to alumni, and within all our graduate and professional divisions, students are encouraged to cross disciplines and embrace new levels of academia.

In 2012, the College and Law School announced the beginning of the Chicago Law Scholars Program, a special early admission opportunity available only to members of the University of Chicago academic community. This special admissions program will encourage College students and alumni to remain part of the University of Chicago by providing applicants early admission and merit scholarships to the Law School. With the University of Chicago Law School ranked among the top four law schools in the nation, this partnership offers our students a unique ability to pursue a legal education in the same rigorous, intellectual community they have already come to call home.

ELIGIBILITY

The Program will be open to all College students and alumni. College students may apply during the Fall Quarter of their final year at the College and will matriculate at the Law School after completing their undergraduate education. College alumni are also eligible to apply the year before they intend to matriculate to the Law School.

TIMELINE

Applicants must complete the application by December 1, and will receive an admissions decision by the end of December. Applicants will receive the added benefit of having their admissions decision from UChicago in advance of the application deadlines at many other institutions.

SCHOLARSHIPS

Students admitted under the Program will be awarded a merit scholarship of at least $150,000.00 over three years.

COMMITMENT

Acceptance will be binding.

SELECTION & ADMISSION

The Program will be competitive, and represents a commitment to accepting bright and talented students and alumni with promising futures in law. The evaluation and selection of candidates will mirror the regular admissions process in that it will involve a holistic review of all components of the applicant's file and qualifications; the Law School will not establish any minimum LSAT score or GPA requirements for admissions.

UCHICAGO CAREERS IN LAW (UCIL)

The UChicago Careers in Law program (UCIL) is a pre-law advising opportunity open to all UChicago students and Alumni through UChicago's Career Advancement. UCIL offers internships, mentorship opportunities with current law students, and one-on-one advising and application support to students and alumni as they explore careers in law and prepare law school applications. UCIL helps students prepare for the UChicago Law Scholars program through their advising and assistance with the application process.
